

The original 501c3 non-profit founded in 2017

Authentic Native Arts Association, Inc.

Prudy Correa, ANAA Board member since 2019

PRUDY CORREA is from Pueblo of Acoma, New Mexico. She is born of Red Corn and Sky Clan. Correa has a BA in Business Administration-Accounting from New Mexico State University and a master's degree in business administration from University of Phoenix. She has worked in accounting, human resources, tribal planning and museum planning for Pueblo of Acoma. She has served on numerous boards, including Board of Directors for Acoma Business Enterprises, and Board of Directors for Authentic Native Arts Association, Inc. (ANAA).

She is presently continuing to do her love of working with clay. She comes from several generations of pottery making at Acoma Pueblo. She has continued her art for over 25 years and specializes in making storytellers, both animal and human forms, and nativity scenes. She works in natural earth clays, processed micaceous clays and natural earth paints.

She has won awards at Santa Fe Indian Market (SWAIA), Heard Museum Show, Red Earth, New Mexico State Fair and Pueblo Market in Isleta Pueblo.

Sara Chadwick
Authentic Native Arts Association, Inc.
Founder and President